Send secure emails with Mail

Patients and other partners in the chain expect healthcare organisations to handle private information with care. That is why it is very important that all communication with and about the patient can be secure. Including email. Healthcare organisations guarantee this by sending emails over a private network and observing the NTA 7516 standard. This is a national standard that sets requirements for healthcare organisations and professionals in the Netherlands whenever they want to send secure emails to chain partners and natural persons.

Sending and receiving sensitive emails in the healthcare and public sector

Sensitive private information can only be properly protected with an email programme that fulfils high standards when it comes to availability, integrity and confidentiality. This applies to all our email solutions, from linking email servers to email server providers and linking webmail, to secure email with information systems.

Security and convenience

Enovation Mail is secure and user-friendly. Plug-ins play a considerable role. These make finding and selecting recipients in the Mail address book very easy and reduce the risk of email address errors. With Enovation Mail, you can also be sure that you are exchanging sensitive information securely in line with GDPR.

Awareness

In addition to technical and functional security requirements, organisational measures are of course also needed for secure email in healthcare- and public sector. Best practices and awareness among professionals and patients are just as important as the security of the email solution itself. Enovation works with organisations in this area too.
