

Transfer Readiness Assessment

Who is Enovation?

Enovation is a healthcare technology provider with over 40 years' experience working with the NHS and other healthcare systems across Europe. We design and connect healthcare systems to streamline patient pathways and deliver more efficient care.

What is a Transfer Readiness Assessment?

A relevant, timely, and cost-effective snapshot of where you are today, where you would like to get to, and what you might want to consider in order to get there. It is useful for Trusts and other healthcare providers looking to digitise their transfer process and provide improved patient experience and efficiencies of care.

Why is it needed?

There is good national guidance for how to approach patient discharge, including that it be considered more holistically in terms of a whole care pathway. Despite this, there are very few technology providers and even fewer solutions which align with an integrated care approach across healthcare providers. For example, many EPR providers offer a discharge module or element of their solution, but it does not integrate with downstream systems or take into account processes elsewhere. Information is siloed and solutions do not allow for cross provider collaboration; for this reason they are used sporadically with limited benefit and impact.

Why Enovation can help

Enovation is, first and foremost, an integration and interoperability partner, providing solutions across the health and social care divide. This means that, rather than promoting a 'rip and replace' approach, we help care providers make better use of their existing solutions across workflows and organisational boundaries.

It is this consultative approach which helps unlock real value to streamline pathways.

How long is the assessment and what is involved?

The assessment takes 2 days. It is deliberately time-bound to ensure it offers a prompt and relevant snapshot of key considerations for embarking on a digital transfer project. The first day would involve a meeting on site to introduce and understand the current landscape in terms of existing solutions and processes. The second day would take place at a convenient date in the following weeks, could be onsite or remote, and would provide findings and feedback around starting point, key considerations and next steps for your digital transfer project.

What does it cost?

We have deliberately capped the cost of the assessment at 2 days Professional Services, even where we may involve multiple people from our side. This is to ensure that the activity is focussed and delivers value for money.
