From data to insight

Healthcare organisations are aiming to gain a better understanding of what treatments truly achieve for patients, as insight into treatment outcomes and quality of care is essential to improving care processes. Since data is spread across multiple systems – and not always complete or up to date – a real-time overview is often lacking. An intelligent digital solution that consolidates, analyses and translates data into actionable insights helps organisations evaluate, learn and make improvements more effectively.

Real-time insight into healthcare quality

Real World Monitoring combines data processing, clinical expertise and AI. By linking data from EPRs, registries and outcome measurements in a smart way, it provides immediate insight into what works, helping care teams evaluate more quickly, target improvements more precisely and manage quality more effectively.

Data-driven decision-making

Clear dashboards display real-time indicators for production, costs and staffing. Healthcare professionals can identify trends and analyse treatment results at patient level, enhancing agility and supporting decision-making.

Integration and application

Integration with healthcare systems and FHIR profiles via Datagateway makes data processing efficient and secure. Real World Monitoring is also highly versatile, such as oncology data exchange via R(H)ONDA, efficiency analyses in rehabilitation care and sharing patient-reported outcomes with H2O Nederland.
